Improving Supply of Milk in Cities
MR. J. DAULATRAM'S SUGGESTION

A suggestion that the Government of Bombay should convene a conference of officials and non-officials all over the country interested in the problem of milk supply to big cities and towns was made by the Hon. Mr. J. J. Daulatram, Food Minister, Government of India, on Wednesday, when he visited the Government milk colony near Goregaon, about 18 miles from Bombay.

According to the Food Minister, the conference should be called at the time of the opening of the milk colony some time in February next, and among other matters it should discuss ways and means of improving and cheapening milk supply.

Another suggestion which Mr. J. J. Daulatram made to officials of the Bombay Government was the opening of an institution for imparting post-college education for veterinary, agricultural and dairy students in the practice of commercial dairying. He also thought that the provincial Government could manufacture gur from the palm trees which abound in the locality, and promised to send a memorandum of India expert to assist them in the manufacture.

IMPROVING CATTLE BREED
Mr. J. J. Daulatram was accompanied by Mr. A. L. Dias, Joint Secretary, Civil Supplies Department, Government of India, and Dr. P. N. Khurody, Milk Commissioner. The Milk Commissioner explained to the Food Minister details of the Bombay Government's scheme for improving the supply of milk to the city, and the breed of cattle in the villages. He also showed him one of the seven units in the milk colony which is ready for occupation.

According to Government's scheme, the milk colony will consist of 20 large dairy farm units, each unit accommodating 500 milk cattle. When the scheme is completed, all the cattle from the colony will be taken to the milk colony, and it is believed that within 18 months not a single head of cattle will be left in any of the villages in the city.

CENTRAL DAIRY
The various units in the colony will be given to cattle owners at a reasonable and economic rent, and the burden of marketing the milk will be taken away from them. Government arranging to distribute it through their supply centres. The milk colony will also have a Central Dairy with a modern milk processing plant which will also bottle the milk so that out-delivery of milk in sealed bottles will be made possible in the near future.

Arrangements are also being made for the opening of a Central Veterinary Hospital and for the purchase and supply of cattle feed and hay at cheaper rates to the owners. The latter scheme, it was explained to the Food Minister, will provide Bombay City with better and cheaper milk.

It is the intention of the Government of Bombay to purchase a large number of bulls which will be sent to the village for improving the breed. Bombay City has already along drawn cattle from the villages, but owing to the defective management these cattle have been rendered unfit and useless.

Mr. J. J. Daulatram was much impressed with the milk colony and expressed that the scheme was a step in the right direction to improve milk supply to cities.

The Food Minister will meet the Committee of the Indian Merchants' Chamber on Thursday evening. He will visit the refugee camps on Mooli Island on Friday and the other refugee camps on Saturday.

INDIAN FILM INDUSTRY
Need For Support Urged
Speaking at a symposium on "The Indian Film" held under the auspices of the Progressive Group, Bombay, on Wednesday, Mr. Chandrashekhar Prasad, President of the Indian Motion Picture Producers' Association, appealed to the Government to support the motion picture industry in India, which was the most powerful medium for raising the level of culture of the masses.

He said that the industry had been subjected to all kinds of unjust and harsh restrictions and heavy taxation, because it had been characterised by those in authority as a "luxury". This view, he asserted, was erroneous adding that the industry was the most potent weapon and medium for elevating the cultural and educational level of the masses. He expressed the hope that the present national and popular government would change the policy of their predecessors and extend their full support to the industry.

Miss Sneha Prabha, a film star, speaking of her part in the industry, painted a very dim picture of the working conditions prevailing in film studios and workshops, under which artists and technicians had to work for long hours without respite. She said that producers generally were utterly oblivious and indifferent to the interests of the artists.

Others who participated in the symposium, were Miss Pratima Das Gupta, Mr. B. D. Bhargava, President of the Exhibitors' Association, and Mr. B. K. Karanjia.

Mr. B. N. Anklesaria, Vice-President of the Progressive Group, presided.

On a charge of duping a business man into paying him Rs. 3,001 to start a rubber balloon factory, Ratanshah Rustomji Forbunderwalla was arrested by the Loring Road police on Tuesday. The suspect was allowed bail, pending inquiries, by Mr. K. C. Thakore, Presidency Magistrate, Gigaum Police Court Bombay on Wednesday.

Cultural And Educational Rights Of Minorities

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY'S VOTE

NEW DELHI, December 8.

THE Constituent Assembly adopted today an Article providing cultural and educational rights for the minorities and the protection of their languages and culture.

The Article says that "any section of the citizens residing in the territory of India or any part thereof having a distinct language, script or culture of its own shall have the right to conserve the same."

It also provides that "no citizens shall be denied admission into any educational institution maintained by the State or receiving aid out of State funds on the grounds of religion, race, caste, language or any of them. All minorities, whether based on religion or language, shall have the right to establish and administer educational institutions of their choice. The State shall not, in granting aid to educational institutions, discriminate against any educational institution on the ground that it is under the management of a minority, whether based on religion or language."

MANY AMENDMENTS
A number of amendments were moved to the article. Mr. Anantayam Ayyangar moved an amendment to clause 2 of the Article to ensure that not merely the minorities, but no citizen would be discriminated against in regard to admission to educational institutions maintained by the State. Pandit Thakuradas Bhargava, accepting this position, moved for substitution of the clause by the following: "No citizen shall be denied admission into any educational institution maintained by the State or receiving aid of State funds on grounds only of religion, race, caste, language or any of these."

Pandit Bhargava explained that his amendment would ensure that institutions receiving aid from the State would also be included in the purview of the clause.

Seth Damodar Swarup moved an amendment to ensure that linguistic minorities would have the right to establish, manage, and control educational institutions for the promotion of the study and knowledge of their language and literature as well as for imparting general education to their children at primary and pre-primary stage through the medium of their own languages.

To clause 3 of the Article stating that all minorities shall have the right to establish and administer educational institutions of their own, Prof. K. T. Shah moved a proviso stipulating that no part of the expenditure of such an institution shall fall upon the public purse and that such institutions would not be recognised unless they conformed to the standards prescribed for the national system of education.

LANGUAGE LIBERTY
Mr. Z. H. Lari, Kazi Karimuddin and Begum Aizaz Rasool moved that a new clause be added to the Article ensuring that minorities having a distinct language and script shall be entitled to have primary education imparted to their children through the medium of their language and script.

A number of other amendments were also moved to the clause by Mr. Nazimuddin Ahmed, Dr. Ambedkar and Prof. K. T. Shah.

Mr. Jaijpal Singh commended the Article, which, he said, opened a new era of minority rights. The Article was of an urgent nature and the provincial Governments should implement it, least it applied immediately.

Mr. K. Santanam said that the provision laid down in the Article was the only practical solution of the problem of linguistic minorities.

Mr. Bhanwant Das expressed disapproval against certain provision in the article.

Mr. Alagesan considered the Article as very important for the preservation of various scripts from being threatened with extinction.

Pandit Govind Vallabh Pant said that Government owed a duty to all citizens within the State to administer in such a way as would enable them to make the maximum use of the available resources for the benefit of all.

Maulana Hazrat Mohani said that during the British regime, education in Hindi and Urdu was given up to the primary and secondary stages. It was possible then to impart instruction in two languages, why was it not possible now, he asked.

Pandit Hridaynath Kunzru urged the House to accept Mr. Lari's suggestion and to amend the Article. "In the interests of justice, generosity and tolerance towards the minorities," Dr. Ambedkar, replying to the debate, said the only amendments he would accept were those of Mr. Anantayam Ayyangar as amended by Pandit Thakuradas Bhargava and another amendment by Pandit Thakuradas Bhargava.

Referring to Mr. Lari's amendments and the remarks made during the debate by some speakers that the Drafting Committee had changed the original clause, Dr. Ambedkar said the present term "minority" was used in much wider sense than technical sense so as to include cultural minorities which might exist in particular localities. Explaining this point, he said a few Madrasas going to Bombay or a few Maharastrians going to Bengal and settling there would be a cultural minority, although in the technical sense of the term in the country as a whole they would not be a minority.

GIVING PROTECTION
The Article as it was framed now was intended to give protection in the matter of the culture, language and script, not only to technical minorities but also to minorities in the wider sense of the term as he had explained. At the same time the clause did not cast any burden on the State. It did not require the State to do anything. Madrasas came to Bombay, the Bombay Government would be required by law to finance giving education in subject either in Tamil or in Telugu. The only thing the clause did was that if there was a cultural minority which wanted to preserve its own language and culture, the State would not by law impose upon it any other culture which might be local or otherwise. The clause as it was before the House was a great improvement on the original one opposed by the Fundamental Rights Committee.

Referring to Mr. Lari's amendment, Dr. Ambedkar said the question was whether the right to minorities to give primary education in their own language should be embodied in the Constitution. He did not think there would be any dispute among reasonably-minded people that primary education, if it was to do any good, must be given in the mother-tongue of the child. Otherwise, it would be meaningless. The question was whether such a thing should be included in the Constitution.

JUSTICIABLE ISSUE
Supposing they made it a justiciable issue, as it undoubtedly would be if it was included among the fundamental rights? Was it proper or desirable that the question whether there was a substantial number of children demanding Urdu education in a primary class should be left to be determined by a court? He thought that leaving the matter to be interpreted either by the executive or the judiciary would not be desirable. Therefore, his own submission was they should be satisfied with the provision that primary education should be in the mother-tongue.

The House passed the clause with the amendments accepted by Dr. Ambedkar.

When his amendment was rejected, Mr. Lari challenged a division. After putting it to the vote a second time, the President declared the amendment lost.

The House adopted Article 23 with the amendments accepted by Dr. Ambedkar and adjourned till tomorrow. —A.P.I.

Their Lordships, however, did not change the fine of Rs. 1,000 imposed on the appellant by the lower court.

While reducing the term of imprisonment, Their Lordships took into consideration the age and profession of the appellant.

SUPPLY OF WATER TO UPPER FLOORS

Experiment At Mazagon

A proposal to carry out an experiment to provide tenants living on the upper floors of buildings in Mazagon, Bombay, with a continuous and adequate flow of water by means of a new hydraulic device was referred for scrutiny to the Works Committee of the Bombay Municipal Corporation at a meeting of the Standing Committee on Wednesday.

Placing the proposal before the Standing Committee, Mr. B. K. Patel, Municipal Commissioner, said complaints had been received, owing to a restricted water supply this year, and heavy draw off by the occupants of the ground and first floors of buildings, residents of the upper floors were put to great hardships and that the overhead storage tanks on the top of buildings had remained empty. In order to minimise their hardships and to maintain the required quantity of water in storage tanks it was proposed to fix orifices on the ground and first floor connection of all the houses.

It was also proposed, he said, to try the experiment in the Mazagon area, in the first instance, and to extend its application to other localities if the results were found encouraging. The orifices would be fixed on private communication pipes in the premises beyond the stop taps. If there were no separate connections for the ground and upper floors, the orifices would be fixed on the branch connections supplying water to the ground floor.

Winter
Old grandma warms her hands at the fire in the little earthen pot. The cold wind blows through the bare branches of the trees as they scatter their last leaves. Along the winding, dusty lane a bullock-cart creaks and jolts, while its driver draws his chaddar tight against the penetrating cold. On the road and in the hut, in the fields and under the trees, everyone looks forward to the warmth and comfort of a cup of tea. There is no refreshment so universal, so cheap, so satisfying and so easy to get.
