The Standard of Excellence

THROUGHOUT THE WORLD...THROUGHOUT THE HOME

Electricity may be generated from the power of water stored by a huge dam high up in the mountains, but it must be carried to your home to be of immediate use to you. It is not transported by train, ship or donkey, but is transmitted over slender wires that stretch far beyond the horizon.

General Electric transformers, such as shown above, make it possible to send the current on its way to your home. Similar transformers at the other end of its journey reduce voltage of the current and make it possible to run motors, light, and appliances in your home, office or factory. Other G-E equipment, such as circuit breakers, insulators, condensers, etc., help these huge electrical transmission systems to function continuously and satisfactorily.

Wherever electricity serves mankind, there you will find the influence of General Electric research, engineering, and craftsmanship.

Reserve Bank's Control Over Other Banks BANKING COMPANIES ORDINANCE

NEW DELHI, September 18.
THE Banking Companies (Control) Ordinance, published in the Gazette of India (Extraordinary) today, brings into immediate effect some of the important provisions of the Banking Companies Bill which could not be proceeded with during the last session of the Dominion Parliament.

A "communiqué" says:—The Banking Companies Bill, which is a comprehensive measure designed to ensure the working of banks on sound lines, has been pending for a long time. As further delay has occurred in its enactment, it has become essential, in view of the present economic situation in the country, to enact some of the provisions of the Bill immediately, so that the Reserve Bank of India may be able to assist sound banks and also protect the interests of depositors in other cases.

The main features of the Ordinance are: (i) It authorises the Reserve Bank of India to grant advances to scheduled and non-scheduled banks in emergencies against such form of security as the Reserve Bank might consider sufficient. This power will enable the Reserve Bank to assist sound banks more freely.
(ii) It prohibits the grant of unsecured loans and advances by banking companies to directors, and to firms and private companies in which the directors are interested, and requires banking companies to submit to the Reserve Bank returns of unsecured loans to public companies in which the directors are interested. This is intended to guard against injudicious investment by directors.

MAINTENANCE OF ASSETS
(iii) It provides for the maintenance by banking companies, at the end of each quarter, of assets in India which shall not be less than 75 per cent. of their demand and time liabilities in India. This will prevent foreign banks from transferring too large a portion of their assets outside India to the detriment of the depositors' interests.
(iv) It empowers the Reserve Bank to give directions to banking companies in regard to their lending policies, so that where necessary, rising prices may be checked by control of credit facilities.
(v) It enables the Reserve Bank to apply to a court for being appointed as official liquidator, so that where necessary and possible, the Reserve Bank may arrange for the orderly liquidation of the bank that is being wound up.
(vi) It empowers the Reserve Bank to prohibit a banking company from indulging in practices detrimental to the interests of depositors.
(vii) It prohibits amalgamations or schemes of arrangement or compromise without the concurrence of the Reserve Bank, so that schemes which are detrimental to depositors' interest may not be adopted. It also empowers the Reserve Bank to assist as intermediary in proposals for amalgamation.
The Government of India hopes that this measure will result in strengthening the country's banking structure and in the stopping of undesirable practices.—A.P.I.

PROPOSED DRAFT CONSTITUTION Changes Suggested By West Bengal

CALCUTTA, September 18: The scheme for the allocation and distribution of revenues between the Indian Union and the States composing the Union, proposed in the draft constitution of India, was characterised as "fundamentally defective" by the West Bengal Legislative Assembly in a resolution adopted by the House yesterday.

The resolution, which was moved by the Finance Minister, Mr. Nalin Ranjan Sarkar, recommended that the finances of the provinces should be taken out of the uncertainties of the vote of the Dominion Parliament and that the provinces' share of the income-tax should be determined by a statutory provision instead of being made to depend from year to year on the consent and sanction of the Centre.
The House suggested that the constitution should provide, among other things, that not less than 80 per cent. of the net proceeds of income-tax, including corporation tax and the tax on federal amortisations, should go to the provinces and that not less than 50 per cent. of the net proceeds of the excise duty on tobacco should be allocated to the provinces.

MINIMUM SUBVENTIONS
The resolution also suggested that the minimum subventions payable to the needy provinces should be stated in the constitution, any additional subvention being determined by the President on the basis of the result of an ad hoc inquiry for the first five years and thereafter on the recommendation of the Finance Commission, as contemplated in article 260, which should be an expert body commanding public confidence and should be appointed as soon as possible.
The Assembly also adopted a number of resolutions suggesting certain amendments to the Draft Constitution of India.
Over 80 members, representing different shades of opinion, took part in the discussion. The suggestions along with the proceedings of the debate, will be forwarded to the President of the Indian Constituent Assembly for consideration.
One of the resolutions adopted by the House suggested deletion of the proviso in Article 3 which dealt with the procedure for the formation of new States and alteration of areas or boundaries or names of the existing States.
A resolution moved by Mr. Khuda Bakhsh, suggesting that the Constitution be suitably amended so as to guarantee the personal law of Muslims was rejected by the House by 18 to 27 votes.—A. P. I.
