

USA May Stop Arms Aid To Pakistan

Mrs Gandhi & Nixon Conclude Talks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The U.S. President, Mr. Richard Nixon, and the Prime Minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, concluded two days of talks today and the President emphasized the determination of the USA to do what his country can for a peaceful resolution of the crisis in South Asia, report AP, PTI and UNI.

It is understood that one of the outcome of the talks, which concluded today, is the American decision to announce shortly after consultation with appropriate Congressional committees that the US Government will end military assistance to Pakistan.

Mrs. Gandhi conferred this morning with the Secretary of State, Mr. William Rogers, after holding a meeting with selected newspaper editors at Blair House. Her meeting with Mr. Rogers was preparatory to her second and final round of talks with President Nixon.

Mrs. Gandhi is believed to have been impressed by both Mr. Nixon and Mr. Rogers' need for an urgent political settlement in Bangladesh on the terms acceptable to the elected representatives of East Bengal led by Sheikh Mujibur Rahman.

The Presidential Press Secretary, Mr. Ronald Ziegler, told newsmen that Mr. Nixon considered the meeting with Mrs. Gandhi "helpful." "It is our intention to contribute in any way we can to the peaceful solution of the problems in the area," he said.

In the second meeting Mr. Nixon explained his planned trips to the Peoples Republic of China and the Soviet Union.

Yesterday Mrs. Gandhi told President Nixon in no uncertain terms India's indignation at those who are attempting to equate India with Pakistan in the present crisis in the Indo-Pak sub-continent.

Speaking at a banquet given in her honour by the American President, Mrs. Gandhi drew attention to the fact that India was not a party to the Indo-Pak conflict. She said that her election victory was quickly overshadowed by the civil war in East Bengal and the resulting flood of refugees. Just as we thought there was nothing but sunshine on the road ahead it was covered with a very large shadow, she said.

"The Indian people," Mrs. Gandhi said, "cannot understand how they could be equated with those whose activities have caused the tragedy."

While in his welcome speech at the White House in the morning, Mr. Nixon in his host at the dinner table made no reference to Bangladesh or problems facing India. But Mrs. Gandhi made pointed reference to the influx of refugees and said India expected "understanding and I might add a measure of support from the USA."

Speaking with the distinguished guests at the banquet, Mrs. Gandhi said the USA must understand this. You have always been an open society. She told President Nixon that the vast number of refugees in her hands was the "price India was paying for the tradition of an open society."

Mrs. Gandhi appealed for international understanding and support for India in handling the refugee problem, and warned that unless the problems between India and Pakistan are solved quickly and peacefully "there is no foretelling where it will lead."

She said that the responsibility of my duty to safeguard the safety of my country.

Mrs. Gandhi in her speech referred to the "agony of the people of India."

She said that the "agony of the people of India" was the "price India was paying for the tradition of an open society."

President Gives Assent To 24th Amendment Of Constitution

From Our Special Representative

NEW DELHI, Nov. 5.—The President today gave assent to the twenty-fourth amendment of the Constitution seeking to restore to Parliament the authority to change the Fundamental Rights denied to it by the Supreme Court over four years ago.

This is a watershed point in the Government's plans to introduce constitutional measures, including changes in the concept of property rights. It paves the way for action in a series of steps already initiated by the Government in the abolition of privy purses and privileges.

The twenty-fourth amendment was passed by the two Houses of Parliament during the last session and was awaiting ratification by half the number of State legislatures to become law. The recent approval of the measures by ten Assemblies had fulfilled the constitutional requirements.

The Government's anxiety to see the amendment on the statute book was evident from the fact that the Law Minister, Mr. Gulzarilal Nanda, had been in touch with the States urging them to expedite despatch of formal resolutions of their Assemblies.

The next step is adoption of the twenty-fifth amendment already before Parliament. It seeks to take questions relating to the adequacy of compensation for acquisition of property out of the jurisdiction of the courts.

The Government, however, will be re-examining its proposals in the light of the report recently submitted to it by the Law Commission. The Commission had suggested minor changes in the official scheme. The twenty-fifth amendment is to be followed by a Bill on privy purses and privileges.

Courts' Jurisdiction May Be Restricted: Mirdha

By a Staff Reporter

MR R. N. Mirdha, Union Minister of State for Home Affairs, said today that the Union Government proposed to enact legislation to restrict the jurisdiction of civil courts in regard to certain aspects of the law in West Bengal. The Government was also considering the need for such legislation was felt as a progress of land reforms in the State had been somewhat retarded because of court cases. According to his information about 16,000 writ petitions and about 65,000 cases of disputes were pending before different courts in the State. The Minister also indicated that steps were being taken to ensure protection of the "legal" owners of land and to see that the harvesting was done peacefully.

Mr. Mirdha who had visited some border areas in the Bonanza region on Thursday, was glad to observe "the high morale of the refugees" and did not notice any tension between the refugees and local people. Despite occasional shelling by Pakistani troops from across the border and other provocative acts, he said, the refugees and the local people had been showing considerable restraint.

Asked by reporters, Mr. Mirdha claimed that there had been considerable improvement in the law and order situation in the State during the last two months. Incidents of bomb-throwing, gun-snatching, attacks on educational institutions and libraries and raids on Government offices by the extremists had shown a sharp decline. He said that in spite of isolated incidents of attacks on policemen and rural police workers and supporters that were taking place the situation was steadily improving. Public resistance to violence was growing and people's confidence in the Government was also being restored.

According to information available to him there were 50 cases of murder in February 1967 in Calcutta—a figure considered to be very high in those days. To save the end of October there had been 260 cases of murder in the city of which 156 were of a political nature.

Asked whether any talks had begun between the Naxalites and the Government, Mr. Mirdha said that many Naxalites had already approached the Government and many more were still in touch with the Government. They wanted to be "exposed" for their past activities. The Government was providing them with adequate protection and the question of their economic rehabilitation might be taken up if the situation so demanded.

In view of his claim that the "climate of violence was changing", a reporter wanted to know whether general elections would be held by March. His reply was "the situation is not that 'no-mal'".

Mr. Mirdha also ruled out the possibility of declaring partial emergency in some parts of the State.
