REPUBLIC FOR INDIA

that we should give some indication to ourselves, ic those millions in this country who were looking up to us and the world at large, of what we aimed at, what we sought to achieve, whither we were going "It is with this purpose that I have placed this resolution before the House, It is something much more than a resolution; it is a declaration; it is a firm resolve, it is a piedge and an undertaking and it is for all of us. I hope, a dedication, I wish this House, it I may say so respectfully, io consider this resolution not in a spirit of narrow legal wording, but to look at the spirit hebind, the resolution. Words "are magic things often enough, but even the magic of words sometimes cannot convey the magic of the human spirit and of a nation's spirit and so I cannot say that this resolution at all conveys the passion that lies in the hearts and minds of the Indian people to-day.

"It seeks very feebily to tell the world what we have sought and dreamed of for so long and what we now hope to achieve in the near future. It is in that spirit that I venture to place this resolution before this House and it is in that spirit that I trust the House will receive it and uittimately pass it. May I also, with all respect, suggest to you and to the House that when the time comes for the passing of this resolution, that may not be done in the fornest solemnity by all of us standing up and thus taking this pledge anew?

MUSLIM LEAGUE'S ABSENCE

MUSLIM LEAGUE'S ABSENCE "The House knows that there are many "The House knows that there are many absentees here; many members who have a right to come here have not come. We regret that, because we should have liked to associate with ourselves as many representatives of as many different parts, of India and as many different groups as possible. We have undertaken a tremendous task and we seek the co-operation of all people in that task because the future of India that we have envisaged is not confined to any group, religious, provincial or other, but it comprises all the 400 million people of India and it is with deep regret that we find some benches empty, some col-

OTHER ASSEMBLIES RECALLED

Referring to the large number of amendments which had been tabled Pandit Nehru urged that the House should not lose isself in wordy quarrels and squabbles Pandit Nehru went on: "Because this is a Constituent Assembly. I think also of the various Constituent Assembly. I think also of the various Constituent Assemblies that have gone before of what took place at the making of the great American nation, when the fathers of that nation met and fashioned out a constitution which has stood the test of these many vears—more than a century and a half—and of the great nation which has been built up on the basis of that constitution. And my mind goes back to the mighty revolution which took place also over 150 years ago and to that Constituent Assembly that met in that gracious and lovely city of Paris which has fought so many battles for freedom and the difficulties that that Constituent Assembly had; how the King and other authorities came in its way and still it continued. The House will 'remember that when these difficulties came and even lodging and a place to meet were denied to that Constituent Assembly they betook themselves to an open fennis court and met there and took the oath which is called the Oath of the Tennis Court. They continued to meet inspite of kings and in spite of others and did not disperse till they had finished the great task they had undertaken. I trust that it is in that solemn spirit that we too are met here and took the oath which is called the Oath of the Tennis Court. They continued to meet inspite of whether we meet in this chember or other and did not disperse till they had finished the great task they had undertaken. I trust that it is in that solemn spirit that we too are met here and took in others and did not disperse till they had include the great task they had undertaken.
